THE SURPRISE.

When the bright September moon O'er the hill top rises, shall give some one I know The sweet st of surprises. He asked me, just the other night To be his little wife ; teld him that already I Loved some one more that life.

Then ah! how very grieved he seemed, And took my hand in parting With such a look, I'm sure my eyes Betrayed the tear-drops starting. But when he asked for one more walk Beneath the moon's soft rays, I promised I would tell him then Who stole my heart away.

And so when the September moon Is o'er the hill-top shining, Beneath the trees I'll walk with him My arm in his entwining. And oh! how glad his smile will be When I my secret tell. And own there's none so dear as he; None whom I love so well!

Giant Powder.

Chemistry itself is at a loss to estimate the power of nitro-glycerine, says the Virginia City (Cal.) Chronicle, and yet this new agent of death is twenty per cent could get five pounds of sugar, a quarter of stronger. That our readers may be enabled to form a faint conception of the danger of such a preparation, we will give a brief description of the process by which nitro-glycerine, giant and Hercules powder are supposed to be manufactured, and of the extreme caution necessary in their man-

In the manufacture of nitro-glycerine, two tubes, each about a quarter of an inch in diameter and six inches in length, lead into a single tube of double their capacity but of the same length. Nitric acid is introduced into one and sulphuric acid into the other of these small tubes. The large tube contains glycerine. The two scids are then forced gradually into the giveerine, and the chemical combination thus forms an explosive of incalculable power. So powerful and dangerous is this article, that not an ounce of it is allowed in the manufactory while this little tube, six inches long and half an inch in diameter, is being filled, and this tube is kept constantly swathed in ice during the process To make giant powder, this nitro-glycerine is allowed to drip upon a clay (similar to meerschaum) imported frem Germany. The clay is the only perfect absorbent of nitrodisassociate herself from one, of whose af- glycerine known. As Hercules powder is darker, it is believed that that explosive is manufactured by the same process, charcoal, of said quality of clay. If, in the manufacture of nitro-glycerine, a strong tube is kept swathed in ice, and a quantity of the liquid only six inches in length and half an inch in diameter is allowed in the building at the same time, no wonder that General Von Bokkelen, with his preparation twenty. per cent. more powerful, remarked that he would have it handled thermometer in
